

Potential Voice Students,

My name is Gigi Aldridge, I am a Junior at the Savannah College of Art & Design. I am very happy to have the opportunity to recommend the wonderful, talented Brenda Morie as a voice teacher. Brenda was recommended to me in January of 2012, as I was looking for an experienced, reasonably-priced voice teacher to prepare me for a musical audition in May 2012. The first time I talked to Brenda, I was immediately put at ease that I would be more than prepared for my audition in Indianapolis for the popular, Pulitzer prize-winning rock opera, RENT.

Ms. Morie, a highly accomplished professional singer and flutist, offers the best prices for 45 minute voice lessons, a schedule flexible to every student's needs, and lessons, scales and breathing exercises specifically tailored for each individual voice, experience level and desired outcome. She also employs her state- of- the- art musical equipment to create CD's for student's to practice with outside of class, and to record students for constructive critiques. Brenda also does not confine learning for her students to just the inside of the classroom, but also encourages students to learn by example by watching her perform around the city of Savannah, acquiring the knowledge not only of great vocal technique in action, but also the overall aspect of public performance and singing with a band, no matter the audience.

Brenda helped me to reach my personal goals of an expanded my vocal range, increased breath support, the most appropriate tone quality for any audition or singing opportunity and to always be the most confident singer in the room. With her guidance, after only 2 months of voice lessons, I was prepared for the most attended community theatre audition in years. Brenda's lessons not only got me my dream role of Mimi Marquez in RENT out of 80 other girls, but also prepared my voice for strenuous rehearsals, morning news segments and performing in a parade, all leading up to 11 sold out performances at Footlite Musicals from July 5-22. I never got sick or hoarse because Brenda Morie taught me how to take care of my voice. The show was a critical and financial success and was voted in the top 10 of Indy theater in the year 2012.

None of my goals would have been achieved without the edge of Brenda's teachings. If you are looking for a voice coach for a professional gig, or are just trying to improve the quality of your voice, she is the only choice. Brenda is sweet, professional, honest and gifted, all in one package. She is personally invested in each of her student's successes and is patient with all age groups, experience levels, and desired outcomes. Please contact Brenda today for the all of your vocal needs, your voice and audiences will thank you for it!

Warmest Regards,

Gigi Aldridge
